WM. PETERS KILLED AT MARKLETON; JOHN RAFFERTY HELD FOR CRIME.

Different Stories Told of the Shooting and Man Charged With It Don't Remember What Happened.

ARRESTED ASLEEP IN TUNNEL

Varying Stories Told of the Manner in Which Peter's Came To His Death—Denied That a Girl Was Concerned in It.

William Peters, section foreman of the Baltimore & Ohio at Markleton, was shot and killed Friday night, supposedly by John Rafferty, a laborer. Stories of the affair differ. Peters was about 32 years of age, married and leaves five children. He was the son of James Peters, a prominent lumberman at Markleton.

Peters, Rafferty, James Dolan and several others were in the store of Antonio De Tompa at Pinkerton Friday evening. The stories agree up to this point. Some say there was a quarrel between Peters and Rafferty ending in Peters going out of the store and running down the track. Rafferty is alleged to have followed him and shot three times. Peters fell with a ball through the back. The bullet penetrated his heart and death was instantaneous. Rafferty kept on going and disappeared.

Another story is that Rafferty was feeding with a .32-caliber revolver, which was discharged accidentally, shooting Peters in the back. James Dolan, aged 18, is said to be a witness who saw Rafferty follow Peters and take deliberate aim at him.

Peters' body was brought to De Tompa's store, where it lay on the porch until Saturday morning. Saturday officers from Somerset took up the search for Rafferty and about noon they found him asleep in Pinkerton tunnel. He was very drunk and professed to know nothing of the shooting. He was held by the Conner and confined in the county jail.

There is a story to effect that Peters and Rafferty quarreled over an Italian girl but this is denied by friends of Peters, who say he was a married man whose home life was above reproach. They declare that he was mixed up in a deal where a girl was concerned. Rafferty is a laborer and is about 40 years of age.

Running Board Not The Place For Passenger

Before Judge McConnell at Greensburg on Saturday a non-suit was granted in the case of McConnell v. Greenburg. The case was brought by Greenburg, who had brought suit against the West Penn Railway Company for damages at Greensburg to have been sustained in an accident at Murphy's siding on August 10, 1906.

McConnell came over from Greensburg to attend the Connellville Centennial celebration. Going home he fell from the car at Murphy's siding and claimed to have been injured. At the time McConnell fell from the car he was standing on the running board, though there was a seat in the car.

Judge McConnell ruled that anyone riding on the platform with the car is in motion is negligent and on that ground granted a non-suit.

Palm Sunday Pleasant Day With Showers

Yesterday was Palm Sunday and a pleasant one, too. The weather during the morning was ideal, the temperature staying in the neighborhood of 60 degrees. In the afternoon it was cloudy and a heavy rainstorm fell for a time, but this had the effect of clearing the air and after the rain passed the same beautiful weather that prevailed during the morning was again in evidence.

The rain is just what the old weather-seekers have declared was needed to result in some genuine springlike weather. The brand spring this morning seemed to confirm the theory, for the weather was certainly fine. The river rose from 2.6 to 2.6 feet as a result of yesterday's shower.

No Basketball Tonight.

There will be no basketball at the Armory this evening, the Scottsboro Independents having cancelled their game with the High School five.

Dies of Wounds.

Arthur Settle, aged 22, who shot himself through the head in the Baltimore store six weeks ago, died Saturday in the Uniontown hospital.

GENTLE SPRING HERE.

It Came in This Morning at Exactly 7:03 O'clock.

Gentle spring is here. Any more groundhog weather will be poaching on preserves that should be immune from such onslaughts. According to Charles B. McCormick's almanac, which is The Conner's official weather prognosticator, spring made its debut for the 1910 season promptly at 7:03 A. M.

The weather was appropriate for occasion.

Important Changes On The Sheepskin On New Schedule

It is reported on good authority that the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company will make a number of improvements in the passenger service on the Fairmont branch this spring. Although no official announcement has been made of the change, it seems to be a foregone conclusion that the changes will be made, if the people of Morgan town and Fairmont press their claims already presented to the company.

It is understood that it is the intention of the company to change the schedule on No. 3 and No. 5 and to introduce the new train asked for by the Board of Trade of Morgan town. By the new arrangement, No. 3 will pass through Morgantown shortly after 8 o'clock, giving Pullman car service direct to New York by connection at Connellville with No. 6, and No. 6 will leave Morgantown between 5:20 and 6 o'clock, connecting with No. 5 at Connellville for Pittsburgh. No. 5 in the new schedule may be made half an hour earlier arriving here.

It is the intention of the railroad company, so it is reported, to establish an additional train leaving Connellville about 7:30 and arriving at Morgantown at 9:30. It is planned to have the train make the return trip, leaving Morgantown about 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

THREE TRAINMEN BRUISED

They Leaped for Safety and Rolled Down the Bank But Had No Bones Broken—Six Cars and Caboose Destroyed—Passenger Trains Detoured.

Traffic on the Connellville division was tied up 14 hours Saturday as the result of a rear end collision at McSpadden. The accident occurred at 2:23 P. M. Extra No. 2828 west ran into the rear of Extra No. 2709, derailing and damaging the caboose, six cars and the engine.

Extra No. 2828 was in charge of Engineer M. M. Patterson and Conductor H. M. Miller. Near McSpadden, it is said, Engineer Patterson was flagged. He applied the emergency brakes but the weight of his train, a number of cars of which were loaded with lumber, caused it to slide along the tracks. It was not going at great speed when the collision occurred. Extra No. 2709, Engineer C. Fowner and Conductor G. B. Seal, was standing at the time.

When they saw the collision could not be averted, Engineer Patterson, Fireman B. T. Finley and brakeman H. Garfield leaped for safety. They escaped with a few bruises. Both tracks were blocked several hours. Trains No. 11, No. 46, No. 12 and No. 5 were detoured by way of Fairmont and the old main line.

The wreck, it is said, was caused by the operator giving Engineer Patterson a white block with another train ahead in the block.

A Dunbar Man Gets Mervis Goat In Horse Trade

A Dunbar man got Joe Mervis' goat this morning. The "Big Smell," as the horned monarch of Church Place and Mervis' stable was popularly but distantly known in this part of town, made his departure this morning at the end of a rope held by a nerry Dunbar citizen with a bad cold in his head. Mervis traded him for a horse. The "Big Smell" was always in evidence, invisible or otherwise, on West Church Place. He was a sad eyed old fellow, a Billy of sombre mien richly endowed with every quality a goat is supposed to possess, who minded his business and never permitted the noxious odors of the Ivory stable to taint the gentle zephyrs in this section of town. In fact the "Big Smell" has preoccupied everything in the odor line hereabout for the past four or five years.

A message from Dunbar at noon today states that "Teny Bufano" is "negotiating" for the "Big Smell" as a buck beer sign.

Fair Weather. Fair and rising temperature tonight and Tuesday is the noon weather bulletin.

NEW USE FOR ELECTRIC FANS.

They Will Help Heat a Building as Well as Keep it Cool.

The Electric Fan should not be stored away. Its services are as essential in winter as in summer. It can be used to advantage by placing it in the intake of a hot air furnace to force the circulation of hot air to distant rooms and to heat rooms quickly. The breeze from an electric fan blowing through a radiator circulates the heated air and gives a more even distribution of heat and assists materially in quickly heating large rooms and halls. The circulation of heat by the use of the electric fan saves a large percentage of fuel and is well worth trying.

She was one of the most popular and oldest teachers in Fayette county, having taught for 21 years, both in Dunbar borough and township schools, having been employed as one of the primary teachers in all schools she taught.

She was a woman of a quiet and ladylike disposition and will be greatly missed by her many friends and especially her many former pupils of the Fairview school where she had taught for a number of years.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from her late home, services being conducted by Rev. C. C. Miller, pastor of the Presbyterian Church. Interment will be made in the Franklin cemetery.

CANNONISM AND REPUBLICANISM.

The revolt against Cannonism in the House at Washington is a revolt against the man or the system, or both, and it is proper to consider both on their merits and in respect to their party relation.

The insurgent element directed their efforts toward the elimination of the Speaker from the Committee on Rules. This committee steers legislation and is virtually the ruler of the House. The insurgents were successful in their efforts through the assistance of a solid Democracy. That aid was given, not for the purpose of furthering any legislative principle, but simply and solely with a view to dividing and ultimately destroying the Republican majority in the lower branch of the Congress.

The system was inaugurated during the incumbency of Speaker Thomas H. Reed of Maine, when in order to prevent the filibustering tactics of the minority directed toward the defeat of policies to which the Republican majority was pledged the "Reed Rules" which gained the Speaker the appellation of "Czar" Reed, were enacted. These rules have remained the same ever since. They have become a part of the Republican practice and have the cordial endorsement of the Republican majority.

Speaker Cannon may have been personally dictatorial, but if the insurgent opposition to him is personal it is far from being Republican. The Republican party believes in the right of the majority to rule, and the insurgent who disputes that fact is not a good Republican. If the insurgent revolt is against the rules it is a revolt against Republican faith and practice which should never seek Democratic alliance and aid in its enforcement. The policies of its party should be determined within the party, and its members should either subscribe to the policies of the party or abandon any pretense of adherence to it.

The justice and wisdom of the Reed rules are questions open to debate, but the insurgents are mistaken if they assume that the argument is all on one side. The Reed rules may smack of tyranny, but they insure the right of the majority to govern the body. The claims of the insurgents for rule by membership rather than by the centralized power of the speaker is open to the danger that through its operation the wheels of legislation may be continually derelict, and the pledges of the majority party to unredeemed. The Reed rules may be summed up to be the height of common sense and fair play in the hands of a broad-minded and patriotic Speaker, or the worst form of tyranny and oppression in the hands of an unscrupulous and factional presiding officer.

The insurgents claim to seek only justice to themselves in their relation to legislation, but they should never forget that they and all good Republicans are morally bound to the fulfillment of Republican platform pledges. In seeking to save their own petty hates they should not try to pull down the whole Republican structure in one common ruin.

That Connellville's beer check story is going the rounds of the neighboring press, the beer check seems to have been an innocent food check, but the story as originally told is too good to be corrected or modified so Connellville is advised on an unobtainable note. It is hard to tell who is most to blame for the story, but the minister who made the food check about it.

The central police selling agency merger is growing in favor, but as a general rule, the merger in the case of the A. is better attained when times are desperate.

The arguments in the Standard Oil case were not confined to the Standard Oil case. Some of them are under the appeal to the jury. The Standard Oil case is composed of judges, not jurors.

When business gets dull in police circles the Louisville case seems very dry and the result is usually a lull in the city.

Small pox is creeping nearer. It is reported to be peeping in the Mount Haddock hill. It should get no farther with Connellville's consent or cooperation.

The Unlabeled man who bought his own coffin and had it laid aside for him is not an old man, but he doubtless has a just regard for the uncertainties of life in a joy-riding town.

Suterville is in the free bridge line.

Beautiful Spring has been flirting with us on the very threshold of the vernal smiling.

The Connellville fire department wants a couple of new plugs of the quine variety. It means a couple of horses on the Town Council.

The matter of bondsmen caught some of our best law collectors.

Perhaps that earthquake disturbance noted by the seismographs on Saturday was the echo of the Cannon debate at Washington.

The muscians are no respecter of persons. Neither age nor sex nor previous condition escapes them. Not even the church girls can skip away from them.

Conspicuous is sometimes dangerous to the barometer.

King Edward is not as young as he used to be.

Old Residents of Smithfield Borough Hold Double Celebration on Saturday.

Special in The Courier.
SMITHFIELD, March 21.—One of the most enjoyable social functions of the season was that given by Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Stewart at their fine home on Water street Saturday. Stewart and daughter Goldie, Smithfield; Mrs. M. J. Lyons and Mrs. B. F. Black, sisters of Mrs. Stewart, both of Smithfield; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. High a sister of Mr. Stewart, and Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Sadler, Point Marion; Mr. and Mrs. John Conn, Springhill township; Rev. Dr. W. M. Ryan and wife, Rev. P. O. Sturgis, Mrs. Alice Brown, J. W. Showalter, L. H. Leach, W. L. Stewart and H. O'Neil Smithfield.
Dinner was served at 12 o'clock and such a dinner. The tables fairly groined with the weight of the good things prepared. Rev. Ryan was called on to say grace. He dedicated the honor to Rev. P. O. Sturgis, he being the oldest guest present being 91 years and six months of age. Mr. Sturgis responded in an earnest position of thanks to the giver of all good gifts, spiritual and temporal. J. W. Showalter who sat at Mr. Sturgis' right, is an other patriarch that this community delights to honor. He is 89 years old. Sturgis Showalter and L. H. Leach are old time school teachers. In point of continuous service as a teacher Showalter ranks them, he having taught 52 consecutive terms in the schools of Fayette county thereby gaining the title of Fayette county's veteran teacher, for which through the Pittsburgh Times content several years ago he got a free trip to Europe and return. After a season spent in social intercourse the guests departed to their several homes feeling that it had been good to meet the genial host and hostess and wishing them many more anniversaries of birth and marriage.

STUDENTS COMING HOME FOR EASTER VACATION

The local college boys and girls have already commenced to arrive home from their respective schools for the Easter vacation. Several will arrive home tomorrow while the majority will reach home during the latter part of the week.

Among those who will spend Easter at home are Miss Florence Harry, and Miss Mary O'Hara, students at St. Joseph's Academy at Bolton Hill, Miss Mary Lou Dull, a student at National Park Seminary at Forest Glen, Md., Miss Edith Waller, a student at the Pennsylvania College for Women, Pittsburgh; Miss Edith Gallagher, a student at Slippery Rock State Normal; Miss Nellie Patterson and Miss Julia Little, students at Indiana State Normal; Misses Emma Harlan and Edith Reinhard students at the Cal-

It's Up To You.
It is worth a lifetime of scrupulous economy, if, in the evening of life, one can be seated before his own fire. If you don't own your own home, there cannot be a better time to begin than now, right now. We want to build you a home and we are willing to help you through if you need. You are paying rent now, making the landlord rich, and getting no return and we believe that we can arrange things so that you may own your home with about the same monthly payments as you are now making in rent; you can make more about it if you will take time to call upon The Connellsville Construction Company.

Second-Hand and Used Pianos At Sweeping Reductions.

Many Instruments as Good as New Are Marked at Less Than Half What They Originally Brought, While Many Others That Have Been Used Longer Are Selling at Far Less.

NO EFFORT BEING SPARED TO SELL EVERY USED
PIANO IN STOCK.

If it were possible to do so, we would not turn over a single used or second hand piano in our inventory, when we consolidate our many treasures into one, on Saturday, April 2nd.

It is the wish of every one at interest in the sale of every second hand piano before that date.

When the consolidation takes place Saturday, April 2nd, second hand and used pianos will be turned over at JUST WHAT WE CAN REPLACE THEM FOR, and as it is desirable to turn in inventory sheets showing just as few second hand and used pianos as possible, we will sell any second hand or used piano in stock AT A TRIFLE ABOVE WHAT IT CAN BE TAKEN IN INVENTORY. In other words WE WILL SELL ANY USED OR SECOND HAND PIANO TO YOU at almost the same price that will be given by the new consolidation.

There were at the beginning of last week approximately 525 used and second hand pianos scattered through out our various stores—with a large quota of them here.

These instruments are in good condition as in the oldest having been put in good playing condition, so that they can be fully guaranteed.

Many of these cannot be told from new. Many bear the names of the great distinguished piano builders, such as CHICKERING, KNABE, HARDMAN, ESTEY, etc.

THE STONE AGE HIT OWENSDALE.

Man Alleged to Have Rained Rocks at a Neighbor There.

SOAKED THIRTEEN DOLLARS

Runaway Boy Turns Up in Scottdale and Is Restored to His Parents. Methodist Children To Gather Eggs This Week—Other Notes.

SCOTSDALE, March 21.—The second dose of justice and law administered to Mike Cebilton of Owensdale for manifesting symptoms of breaking out with assault and battery and disorderly conduct germs was a somewhat severe one. But it was in keeping with a promise made at a previous diagnosis of a similar case made by Justice of the Peace John C. Brownfield of East Scottdale who told Cebilton last August what would happen if the latter appeared before him again.

It is alleged that Owensdale has reverted to ancient history and gone back to the stone age, so that the hitting of rocks has become a means of offense and defense. George Jacquell had charged these things against Cebilton in an information alleging assault and battery and disorderly conduct. It was testified that rocks had been hurled at Jacquell, but it was not clearly proven that Cebilton was the power behind the rocks, as the time was dark and the witnesses were not sure that Cebilton did the throwing, although they heard the impact of rocks on a house. The disorderly conduct was clearly indicated, however, and the fine and costs levied upon the alleged disturber of the peace amounted to over $13.

Runaway Boy Found.
George Spindel came over from Van degrift yesterday to get his son who had left home unexpectedly several weeks ago, and who was found in Scottdale on Saturday evening. The boy is about 16 and wanted to see the world. He is not charged with reading cheap literature, however. The boy came to Scottdale and tried to get work at the American Sheet & Tin Plate Company's works, and it was recognized there that he was a runaway. Chief of Police Frank McCord den was communicated with, and picked the boy up and sent word to his father.

An Easter Offering.
All the members of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday school are to bring Easter eggs to the church next Sunday, when there will be special services in the morning and evening. The donors may bring one egg or more as they see fit, and the little boys and girls are already preparing their folks to provide them with a supply of eggs. The conditions are that the eggs shall be hen eggs, that they shall be fresh of course, and that no colored eggs will be accepted. The colored eggs are all right in their place, but the donation must be of good reliable eggs which are to be shipped to the Deaconess home in Pittsburgh.

Decision Was Reversed.
In the suit of William Henry Strickler against the Dunlap Connellsville Coke Company for a wage claim of $51.25 before Justice Brownfield on Saturday the decision was reversed until Wednesday. Strickler said that he worked in various capacities for the defendant company, and that the company owes him that amount named.

Visiting in Scottdale.

Demonstration Begins.
The orchard demonstrations begin today and continue over tomorrow by the State orchard lecturers at the summer home of Col. E. M. Gross at Greensburg. They will be at J. B.

Looking Over the Field.
Representative C. I. Shuck of Monaca was here Friday, looking over the political situation finding out the popular feeling.

A Pleasant Day.
Sunday was a pleasant day and there having been several millinery openings during the week, the churches showed evidences of the fact, in new bonnets that their owners did not wait until Easter to bring forth.

Was Delayed.
Dr. W. H. Patter, who went down to Washington Friday night returned home yesterday, being delayed about five hours by the big wreck on the B. & O. near Rockwood, which occurred Saturday afternoon.

Deed Is Recorded.
In the Register and Recorder's office a deed from I. H. Cotton to John W. Kiefer for property in East Huntingdon township for $1,800 has been recorded. The place is the one mile west of Scottdale, which Elmer Welsh sold to Cotton. It will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Kiefer, and the latter's mother, Mrs. Mat. Ann Porter.

LID LIFTED IN GRAFT SCANDAL.

Klein's Confession Causes
Upheaval in Pittsburg.

"MEN HIGHER UP" IN DANGER

Politicians, Officials and Men in Most Every Branch of Life Involved in Great Graft Scandal—It is Promised
Pittsburg Will Be Stirred Deep.

Pittsburg, March 21.—Pittsburg's graft exposure volcano has just begun to get active. The public has been given only a glimpse of the smoke, with here and there a few sparks, indicating the eruption that is to come. Former Councilman John F. Klein has lifted the lid of councilmanic graft. He has told the complete story of the bribery of councilmen to pass the city depositors ordinance which named six banks in June, 1908. From forty-three to sixty municipal legislators are involved. A list of councilmen, with the amount of money they received, is in the hands of District Attorney William A. Blakely. The bribe ran from $100 to $7,000.

Prosecution of councilmen for participating in the distribution of money to obtain the passage of the bank deposit ordinance, which was started in full blast today by the district attorney, is but one link in the chain of attack on grafting. The top is to come off and every line of grafting will be exposed.

The grand jury will be asked to take up first the bank depository matter at its session today. On this the district attorney has at least twelve confessions. That many councilmen have admitted that they received certain sums of money, as outlined by John F. Klein.

They have told frankly of their part in the affair and have thrown themselves on the mercy of the district attorney. In this affair it is said the names of prominent politicians will be dragged as those using their influence for certain banks.

Other Forms to Be Looked Up.

When this has been completed the grand jury will be asked to consider evidence on other forms of grafting, which, it is said, will stir the city from one end to the other.

District Attorney William A. Blakely and the Voters' Civic League, in an investigation extending over many months, have secured evidence of a scheme of grafting in the official life of Pittsburg that involves councilmen, other city officials, ward officers and politicians. They have gone into every avenue where even the possibility of graft existed and the revelations which they are now prepared to make, it is said, will equal or surpass any graft exposure ever made in the country.

The ramifications of the scheme, it is said, are unlimited. The line of graft reach out and involve many prominent men both in the business and official life of Pittsburg. The investigation has been thorough and the district attorney intends to continue the fight until all vestiges of graft are eliminated.

Councilmen as Good "Collectors."

The evidence secured, it is said, has uncovered the fact that councilmen have been collecting money on liquor sold to disorderly houses and on every piece of jewelry, furniture, clothing or other things purchased by the inmates. It is asserted that there has been an "official butter" to dispense the liquor; an "official jeweler," to sell the jewelry, and other "official" men who handled everything the owners and inmates of disorderly houses desired to buy.

Volume of evidence are in possession of the district attorney concerning the manipulation of gambling in Pittsburg. The privilege for gambling it is said, were sold by certain councilmen at various prices. In one instance, it is declared, a certain privilege dispenser demanded $1,500 and $1.00 a week to permit the establishment of a crap game in the East End.

It is also asserted that the district attorney is in possession of evidence to prove that certain councilmen have been receiving a stated sum every week from gambling houses and clubs within their wards, and have received a "rake-off" on the beer sold by these clubs. The councilmen also dictated from whom liquors should be purchased by the clubs.

To Drive Into White Slavery. The "white slave" trade is also to receive considerable attention from the district attorney. Those in position to know declare that evidence has been secured which connects several men in the Pittsburg district with this nefarious practice.

A small army of detectives has been at work in Pittsburg for many months gathering evidence and the district attorney is now ready to make a "clean-up." He is determined to weed out all vestiges of graft and is doing so, it is said, that he will fill many cells in the penitentiary.

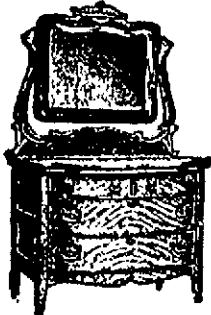

Every man who has anything to do with the official life of Pittsburg, from the lowest up has been shadowed for months. Every move made has been carefully noted. Every official has been subjected to the same strict surveillance.

The district attorney is prepared to present voluminous evidence to the grand jury. In addition to John F.

FEATHERMAN & SUMBERG.

Klein it is said that other councilmen will appear before the grand jury to tell what they know. It is said that, instead of making information before, they will be arrested on district attorney bills, as was done in other graft cases. Special pleas for leniency will be made by the district attorney for those who confess. The men "higher up," however, will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law, in the word given out.

Klein Before Grand Jury Today.

Klein today will appear before the grand jury to tell his story and corroborate other evidence collected by county and private sleuths. He then will be taken to the penitentiary. It is said that a pardon will be asked for Klein after he has served one-half of his term of three years and six months. Before going to the big prison he will be given an opportunity to see his family. However, he will be kept away from other councilmen and their attorneys.

Klein, in his confession, declares that a politician, who was the go-between in the bank depository affair, collected $25,000 from an institution, but turned over only $15,000 to the councilmanic combine. The $10,000, it is said, was "commission."

The matrimonial course includes the following subjects with which the student must be entirely familiar before she is accredited competent to be a home maker: Literature, ethics, child study, household arts, house building, textiles and sewing, handwork and design, music in the home, literature for children, home economics, chemistry, biology, social sciences, hygiene, dental hygiene, home nursing and the care of delinquent children.

Waits 45 Years For Month's Pay.

Weston, O., March 21.—After waiting forty-five years the federal government decided to pay James A. Hutchinson for his service in the Union army during the Civil War. Hutchinson served one month when he was disabled by a bullet wound and discharged. He received a voucher from Washington for $14, one month's pay for a Union soldier. No interest was allowed him.

GLORY ENOUGH FOR INSURGENTS

When Overthrow of Speaker Cannon Was Achieved.

BETTER FEELING AT CAPITAL

Victorious Insurgents Are Not Seeking Places on House Committee On Rules, and Avow Their Fight On Cannon Was One of Principle Only.

Washington, March 21.—The insurgents as a body are not inclined to fight for representation on the reorganized house committee on rules. There is a general understanding among them that they will enter the Republican caucus to be held within a few days as individuals and not as members of the insurgent band.

This moderation of the insurgents after their notable victory over the Cannon organization is working strongly for a better understanding among the Republican forces in Washington. The organization leaders themselves, with a possible exception of Speaker Cannon, are inclined to be conciliatory and they are saying that no attempt will be made to nominate a committee objectionable to the radicals.

The Democrats have just about agreed on the minority representation of four for the new committee. It is predicted that the caucus will name Champ Clark of Missouri, the minority leader; Fitzgerald of New York, Underwood of Alabama, and Hammond of Minnesota. Several of the Democrats have been opposed to the selection of Representative Fitzgerald, who was one of the so-called twenty-three bolters who jumped the reservation a year ago when the supremacy of Speaker Cannon was threatened by a combination of the Democrats and insurgents.

Dalzell Acceptable.

The regulars have already received assurance from many of the insurgents that Dalzell of Pennsylvania and Smith of Iowa, who served with Speaker Cannon on the old committee, will be acceptable on the new one. The regulars have made no attempt as yet to get together on the remaining four members to be nominated by the Republican caucus, but it is pretty generally admitted that Representative McCall of Massachusetts will be one of them. The Pacific coast states will get one representative on the committee, and the choice seems to lie now among Ellis and Hawley of Oregon and Kahn of California. For the remaining two places the names of Stevens of Minnesota and Dandy of Tennessee of Michigan are being mentioned more frequently than any others.

There is method in the decision of the insurgents not to force a fight on the personnel question. They want their struggle in the house to go before the country as one that has been waged entirely on principle, and they fear that any attempt to carry the struggle on in regard to the personnel of the committee would afford ground for charges that their efforts had been inspired by motives of personal ambition.

Even Victor Murdock, the red-headed radical from Kansas, is willing to concede that the insurgents will make no attempt to demand representation on the new committee.

Cannon's Remarks Resented.

All of the insurgents resent the remarks made by Speaker Cannon at the dinner of the Illinois society. The speaker called them cowards because they had refused to vote him out of office and abused them in other ways. The insurgents were not the only ones who criticized Mr. Cannon for his remarks. The speaker's own friends declared that it was impolitic in him and some of them intimated that if Mr. Cannon expected them to go into the party caucus and assume an attitude of open hostility to the radicals he would be much mistaken.

With the Cannon regulars still in control of the enlarged rules committee there may be a disposition on the part of many to ask just what the insurgents will have accomplished from all this hullabaloo. The insurgents themselves will tell you that they have established a principle; that they will have been put in control of legislation in the house by a committee selected by the 381 members of the house and not by a single individual.

By their demonstration they have shown also that they can administer a rebuke to the party organization when they see fit and they believe now that a real effort will be made to make the rules committee of ten a representative organization answerable to the house itself.

The Republican organization men are unanimous in their assertion that the row in the house and the defeat of the speaker together with the vote of confidence in him has done much to clear the atmosphere for the Republican congressional campaign. They contend that the enlargement of the rules committee, the elimination of Uncle Joe and the subsequent vote of confidence in the speaker has removed absolutely the so-called issue of Cannonism in the next campaign. To this, many of the insurgents—the less radical of the outlaw band—give their assent.

"The Republican party is in far better shape than it was before this struggle," said Representative Ham Fish, one of the near insurgent leaders. "Now, there are no differences of opinion between the Republicans of the house and we can proceed to consider without delay the measures demanded by President Taft."

Some of the more radical of the insurgents, those who voted for ousting Mr. Cannon from the speakership, still contend that Cannonism is alive and that it will be a long time before Mr. Cannon is in the chair and hold the appointment of other important committees in the house. The insurgents who have talked against Cannon in their districts and then voted for his retention as speaker when the showdown came are going to do some explaining right away.

They are going to tell their constituents that they voted to establish a principle and helped to deprive Mr. Cannon of his "near like control over legislation in the house." That having been accomplished, however, they did not feel, so the inquisitive constituents will be told, that they could further jeopardize the Taft program by making a fight on Mr. Cannon as an individual.

CHAPTER VII. THROUGH THE WALL.

THE detective entered the room of the tragedy and turned up the lights, all of them, so that he might see whatever was to be seen. He walked back and forth examining the carpet, examining the walls, examining the furniture, but paying little heed to the body. He went to the open window and looked out; he went to the yellow sofa and sat down; finally he shut off the lights and withdrew softly, closing the door behind him. It was just as the commissary had said with the exception of one thing.

Papa Tignol entered to say that he had finished the footprint molds. St. Paul motioned his associate to a chair. "By the way," he asked, "what do you think of that?" He pointed to a Japanese print in a black frame that hung near the Japanese sideboard.

"Why," stammered Tignol, "I don't think anything of it."

Coquell laughed. "All the same, it has a bearing on your investigations." "Diablo!"

St. Paul reached for his glasses, rubbed them deliberately and put them on. "Papa Tignol," he said seriously, "I have come to a conclusion about this crime, but I haven't verified it. I am now going to give myself an intellectual treat."

"What-?"

"I am going to prove practically whether my mind has grown rusty in the last two years. You understand that we are in private room No. 7, don't you? On the other side of that wall is private room No. 6, where a man has just been shot. We know that, don't we? But the man who shot him was in this room; the little hair-brushing old man saw the pistol thrown from this window; the dog found footprints coming from this room; the murderer went out through that door into the alleyway and then into the street. He couldn't have gone into the corridor because the door was locked on the outside."

"He might have gone into the corridor and locked the door after him," objected Tignol.

Coquell shook his head. "He could have locked the door after him on the outside, but on the inside, but when we came in here it was locked on the inside."

"Then how, in heaven's name?"

"Exactly! How could a man in this room kill a man in the next room? And I believe I have solved it. Listen. Between these rooms is a solid wooden partition with no door in it—no passage-way of any kind. Yet the man in there is dead; we're sure of that. The pistol was here; the bullet went there—somehow. How did it go there? Think."

The detective paused and looked fixedly at the wall near the heavy sideboard. Tignol, half fascinated, stared at the same spot, and then, as a new idea took form in his brain, he blurted out, "You mean it went through the wall?"

"Is there any other way?"

"But there is no hole—through the wall," he muttered. "It might be back of that sideboard."

But St. Paul disagreed. "No man as clever as this fellow would have moved a heavy piece covered with plates and glasses. Besides, if the sideboard had been moved there would be marks on the floor, and there are none. Now you understand why I'm interested in that Japanese print."

Tignol sprang to his feet.

"You're mocking me; you've looked behind the picture."

Coquell shook his head solemnly. "On my honor, I have not been near the picture. I know nothing about the picture, but unless there is some flaw in my reasoning—"

The old man stepped forward quickly and looked down the picture.

"Tonnere de Dio!" he cried. "It's true! There are two holes."

Sure enough, against the white wall stood out not one but two black holes about an inch in diameter and something less than three inches apart. Around the left hole, which was close to the sideboard, were black dots sprinkled over the painted woodwork like grains of pepper.

"Powder marks," muttered Coquell, examining the hole. "He fired at close range as Martinez looked into this room from the other side. Poor chap! That's how he was shot in the eye."

"Asses' hides! That's what we are," muttered the old man. "For half an hour we were in that room, Giblin and I, and we never found those holes."

"They were covered by the sofa hangings."

"I know, we shook those hangings, we pressed against them, we did everything but look behind them. See here! Did you look behind them?"

"No, but I saw something on the floor—some yellowish dust. There! It unfolded a paper and showed a few grains of coarse brownish powder."

"You see, there are only board partitions between these rooms, so a sharp anger would make the holes quickly. But there would be dust and chips. The woman probably threw the chips out of the window."

"The woman?"

Coquell nodded. "She helped Martinez while he bored the holes."

"You think Martinez bored those holes?"

"Undoubtedly. The spirals from the auger blade inside the holes show plainly that the boring was done from No. 6 toward No. 7."

Tignol studied the hole. Then he turned. "You're a fine detective, M. Paul, but I was a carpenter for six years before I went on the force, and I know more about auger holes than you do. I say you can't be sure which side of the wall this hole was bored from. You talk about spirals, but there's no sense in that. They're the same either way. We'll see on the other side."

They went around into No. 6. The old man drew back the sofa hangings and exposed two holes—the same holes.

"You see," he went on, "the edges are clean, without a sign of chipping. There is no more reason to say that these holes were bored this side than from that."

St. Paul, going to the sofa, knelt down by it and using his magnifying glass proceeded to go over its surface with infinite care.

"Turn up all the lights," he said.

"Ah!" he cried presently. "You think there is no reason to say the holes were bored from this side. I'll give you a reason. Take this piece of white paper and make me prints of his boot heels."

He pointed to the body. "Take the whole heel carefully, then the other one; get the full marks, everything. That's right. Now cut out the prints. Good! Now, look here. Knelt down. Take the glass. There on the yellow satin by the tail of that silver bird. Do you see? Now compare the heel prints."

Papa Tignol knelt down as directed and examined the sofa seat.

"Happily! You're a magician!" he cried in great excitement.

"No," replied Coquell, "it's perfectly simple. These holes in the wall are five feet above the floor. And I'm enough of a carpenter, Papa Tignol," he smiled, "to know that a man cannot work an auger at that height without standing on something. And here was the very thing for him to stand on, a sofa just in place. So, if Martinez bored these holes, he stood on this sofa to do it, and in that case the marks of his heels must have remained on the delicate satin. And here they are."

"IT'S TRUE! THERE ARE TWO HOLES."

"Yes, here they are, nails and all," admitted Tignol admiringly. "I'm an old fool, but—but—"

"Well?"

"Tell me why Martinez did it."

Coquell's face darkened. "Ah, that's the question. We'll know that when we talk to the woman. Somebody helped him or the chips would still be there; somebody held back those hangings while he worked the auger, and somebody carried the auger away."

Tignol pondered. "Hah! I see! The man in No. 7, the murderer, lifted that picture from its nail before shooting and then put it back on the nail after shooting?"

"Yes, yes," agreed St. Paul.

"Then this murderer must have known that the billiard player was going to bore these holes," went on Papa Tignol half to himself. "He must have been waiting in No. 7; he must have stood there with his pistol ready while the holes were being cut; he must have let Martinez finish one hole and then bore the other; he must have kept No. 7 dark so they couldn't see him."

"A good point, that," approved Coquell, paying attention. "He certainly kept No. 7 dark."

"And he probably looked into No. 6 through the first hole while Martinez was boring the second. I suppose you can tell which of the two holes was bored first?" chuckled Tignol.

STRIKERS WIN LONG STRUGGLE.

The Philadelphia Traction
Company Knuckles
Down.

PENROSE FORCES THE ISSUE

Pennsylvania Senator Tells Company
Officials in Plain Language That Fighting Must Cease—Recognition of Carman's Union Is Granted.

Philadelphia, March 21.—United States Senator Penrose broke the strike last night. One by one he called before him the reluctant directors of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company and forced them to accept the terms that were outlined by powerful financial interests.

President Kruger of the company halted and protested. Clarence Wolf, the vice president, argued unavailingly. Ballard, the chief counsel, tried to smooth the retreat of the company. Nothing served to move the man who had become the boss of the situation.

Penrose said that he would break the company into smith and scatter the pieces over the streets if they continued to hold out another hour.

He reminded them of the dubious financial position they were in. He threatened to get legislation that would force them to make terms less pleasant than had been submitted. He more than hinted at a receivership. He spoke as a man speaks who knows that councilmen dance when the right strings are pulled. He dared the directors to risk action by the common and select councils.

Kruger, Wolf and Ballard played for delay. They wanted the man who had been their friend through all the trouble, Mayor Reyer, to get the credit for settling the strike.

Give Way Completely.

The rapid transit officials caved in. They agreed to everything that Senator Penrose demanded, guaranteeing terms that give the carmen's union nine-tenths of everything they demanded. Even recognition of the Amalgamated union, through a grievance committee, is included in the capitulation. First of all, the company agrees to take back all of the men on strike and to restore them to their old runs and their priority on the wage and promotion lists.

The proviso is made that if the company is unable at once to restore all of the old men to their jobs it shall pay $2 a day to all that are kept waiting and that these shall receive their former jobs within two months.

The status of the 173 motormen and conductors who were discharged for intoxication, knocking down fares and for the good of the service—the act which precipitated the strike—is to be left to a board of arbitration of three men. The company is to name one man, the union is to name the second and these are to select the third. In agreeing to this the company knuckles down to the principle of arbitration which it had uncompromisingly held out against up to the last hours of the fight.

The strikers won a point in the matter of wages. They were getting 22 cents when they struck. By the agreement they will be raised to 23½ cents on June 1 next.

LEWIS SEES PEACE AHEAD

Miner's President Thinks Operators Will Give In.

Cincinnati, March 21.—President Lewis of the United Mineworkers of America, who is here attending the conference between operators and miners of Ohio, Indiana and western Pennsylvania and presiding at the daily conventions of the union miners, issued a statement last night to the effect that he thought that by Wednesday of this week the operators would concede an advance in wages to the miners, thus settling the long drawn out conference.

Lewis says it is well known that the majority of the big operators are greatly averse to continuing longer a stand that threatens to cause a general strike of union miners.

"Well?"

"Tell me why Martinez did it."

Coquell's face darkened. "Ah, that's the question. We'll know that when we talk to the woman. Somebody helped him or the chips would still be there; somebody held back those hangings while he worked the auger, and somebody carried the auger away."

Tignol pondered. "Hah! I see! The man in No. 7, the murderer, lifted that picture from its nail before shooting and then put it back on the nail after shooting?"

"And he probably looked into No. 6 through the first hole while Martinez was boring the second. I suppose you can tell which of the two holes was bored first?" chuckled Tignol.

HOPES FOR THE BEST

President Taft's Terse Comment on Overthrow of Cannon.

New Haven, Conn., March 21.—The news from Washington that the house had decided by a decisive vote to enlarge the committee on rules interested President Taft very much. He did not have a great deal to say to visitors about the situation, but did briefly comment.

"I see," the president is reported as saying, "that Mr. Payne says that the change will benefit legislation. I hope that it is true."
